Why Japandi?

Japanese roots. Australian perspective.

Raised in Japan
Principles we grew up with

Living in Australia
A different way of home

Designing in between Something new

JAPANDI

More Than a Style

What Japandi means to us

Japandi is often described as Japanese meets Scandinavian. For NAMI, it means something closer to home — Japanese principles, reinterpreted for the way Australians live.

01 — FROM JAPAN

What We Grew Up With

Quiet ideas, passed down

Rooms where emptiness is part of the design. Soft light through paper screens. Timber, stone and clay that age gracefully. Small spaces, used with quiet intelligence.

02 — FROM AUSTRALIA

What We Found Here

A different kind of home

Homes that open to the garden. Sunlight that fills every room. Decks made for long evenings outdoors. A way of living shaped by the land and the climate.

03 — IN BETWEEN

Japanese Principles × Australian Living

Not copying Japan. Reinterpreting it.

Ma × Openness

Calm space that still flows outside

Soft light × Big sky

Filtered light for bright Australian days

Natural materials × Local climate

Timber, stone and clay, chosen for life here

温故知新

ON-KO-CHI-SHIN

Learn From the Past, Create What's Next

An old Japanese saying

Because we know both Japan and Australia, we don't recreate one inside the other. We design a new way of living — one that truly belongs here.

WHY NAMI

Why We Can Do This

Two cultures, one perspective

Raised in Japan

We know these principles from the inside

Living in Sydney

We understand Australian homes and lifestyles

Backed by Japan Homes

20+ years of building across Australia & NZ

Japandi, the NAMI Way

At a glance

From Japan	Ma, soft light, natural materials
From Australia	Openness, sunlight, outdoor living
In between	Japanese principles × Australian living

We bring a Japanese perspective to Australian living.

See Our Approach

Japanese roots, made for here

Visit our website
Link in bio

Read Part 3
Our first 3 homes

Follow NAMI
Ideas from Japan, made for Australian living

NAMI